According to reports from the war line of Europe, the people in paying especial attention to the suffering of the Belgian people have overlooked to a great extent the sufferings of a race which greatly exceeds that of the Belgians. The Armenians in Turkey have been deported from their native land into the deserts with very little food and a still smaller chance of ever remaining alive so that they may re-turn. A movement has been started in New York to raise funds for the relief of the Armenians, many influential business men being at its head.
